To Whom it May Concern,

This letter is to express my interest in bringing my 17 years of information technology career experience including 10 years of development experience (8 years professionally) to your firm. I believe that I bring a tremendous amount to the table with my vast and diverse technical skill set.

As my attached résumé indicates, my highly technical background includes over a decade of IT career related experience with:

- ⤴ Professional software development utilizing many different languages and the proven ability to quickly master new technologies and languages.
- ⤴ Architecting, building and developing mission critical, n-tier, fault tolerant, high transaction systems. Eliminating bottlenecks, performance tuning and driving efficiencies end to end.
- ⤴ Project management - leading and directing technical resources and teams.

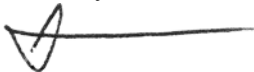

In addition to the above skills, I can also offer your firm:

- ⤴ More than 24 years of technology experience across a wide spectrum of domains.
- ⤴ Expertise with financial services industry, including business to business financial systems.
- ⤴ A passion for elegant and timely solutions that will outlive the problems.

I ask that you please consider me for this position – I think that I am very good fit for both this position and the company. I am certainly looking to be challenged and believe that this is an environment in which I can excel.

Should you have any questions, my contact information listed on my résumé.

Sincerely,

Brad Kusnir
